New Corporate Partners Support Foundation

Bechtel, Kemper Join Growing List of Foundation Donors

Two of the country’s most well-known names in business—Bechtel and Kemper—have joined the ranks of corporations that support the ASSE Foundation. The foundations of both companies recently donated scholarship funds as a way to help ASSEF continue its mission of fostering future SH&E professionals through scholarships, internships and fellowships.

The San Francisco-based Bechtel Foundation donated $10,000 to establish the Bechtel Foundation Scholarship Program for Safety and Health, which will award a $3,000 scholarship each year to an undergraduate pursuing a career in construction safety or a related occupational safety and health field. “We applaud Bechtel for helping establish this scholarship program which will aid future generations of construction safety professionals in the continued quest for building a safer workplace,” says Karl Jacobson, ASSEF Chair.

The James S. Kemper Foundation, based in Long Grove, IL, donated $1,000, which will be used toward the Foundation’s scholarship fund. “We are proud to help the ASSEF in providing college scholarships to the next generation of safety professionals,” says Thomas Hellie, Ph.D., executive director, James S. Kemper Foundation.

UPS Gift Grows 40 Percent

Donation To Fund Six Scholarships

By now, you’ve probably seen the “What Can Brown Do For You?” ad campaign from UPS. Well, for ASSEF, what “Brown” continues to do is offer its strong support of the Foundation’s student scholarship program. Since 1996, the UPS Foundation has donated a total of $156,250 to the ASSEF, providing funds for 29 occupational safety and health scholarships.

This year, the UPS Foundation donated $35,000—a 40-percent increase over last year. The donation will provide up to six scholarships of $5,250 each for the firm’s traditional undergraduate program for students pursuing a degree in occupational safety and health, and for the UPS Diversity Scholarship Program for minority students in the occupational safety and health field.

“UPS is proud to partner with the ASSEF in providing college scholarships to students in occupational safety and health, and also with their mission of ensuring worker safety,” says Keith Jones, UPS corporate health and safety manager.
2003 Scholarships Awarded

The ASSE Foundation recently awarded nearly $60,000 to students pursuing degrees in occupational safety, health and environmental studies.

Advocate Spring 2003
New Trustees Named
The Foundation Board recently welcomed two new trustees: Stephen Bennett, ARM, Wheaton, IL, and Ed Bulakites, Hartford, CT. Bennett is managing director for Marsh Risk Consulting. He has worked in the SH&E profession for 22 years in such industries as retail, service, transportation and manufacturing. Bennett received a B.E. in Electrical Engineering from Vanderbilt University. He is a member of ASSE’s Greater Chicago Chapter and is a member of the National Safety Management Society.

Bulakites was recently promoted to regional manager of safety for United Technologies (UTC), Otis Elevator Division in Chicago. In this position, he leads the injury prevention efforts for the seven-state Midwest region at Otis, implementing hazard control methodologies and applying continuous improvement techniques to integrate safety into business. Bulakites previously served as UTC’s corporate safety and health programs manager, division-level safety project manager for its Pratt and Whitney Division; safety supervisor at Pratt’s facility in East Hartford, CT; and compliance officer for the state of Connecticut’s Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Bulakites is a member of ASSE’s Connecticut Valley Chapter.

Research Grant Approved
The Foundation Board has approved a study by researcher Thomas Anderson, Ph.D., CIH, from University of Wisconsin, Whitewater. Entitled “Factors Which Contribute to Effective Safety Communication in Non-English-Speaking Industrial Equipment Operators,” the study will seek to identify ways to improve safety communication as a way to reduce workplace injury rates among non-English-speaking workers.

Fellowship Candidate Selected
Victor Paquet has been selected as this year’s Liberty Mutual fellowship recipient. He will conduct research this summer at the Liberty Mutual Research Institute for Safety in Hopkinton, MA. Paquet is an assistant professor at the University at Buffalo, State University of New York. His study is entitled “Ergonomic Exposure Assessment Strategies for the Safety Practitioner.” The objective of this study is to develop ergonomic exposure assessment guidelines that can be used by SH&E practitioners to identify ergonomic hazards and evaluate ergonomic controls.
